This is how we work with product images today:

The graphic artist who wants to have an image of a product in a new perspective must give an order to the photographer. He needs time to take the pictures and creates an invoice.

The graphic designer now has to use the supplied images, even if they don't match what he wanted.

This is how we will work with product images tomorrow:

The graphic designer opens an Internet portal, selects the product, turns it into the position he wants, loads the file, which can be printed up to A3 and has a transparent background, onto his PC and positions the product image in the layout. He can repeat this as often as he likes until the position fits exactly.

A property that the photographer cannot offer is transparency, e.g. B. in glass. The background shines through and this makes the result much more realistic than was previously possible. An idea or a campaign can be realized in a few hours instead of days.

Sustainability

Today more important than ever is sustainable work and the avoidance of all kinds of pollution. Be it in interaction with the environment or in the daily routine of work.

FLUXPRO saves a lot of resources. By being able to show the product images on the monitors worldwide, we save on the transport of samples, dummies, display models - and thus emissions and costs.

We reduce the current amount of waste because we create everything purely digitally. No printouts go in the bin, no old dummies have to be disposed of. That saves a lot of waste. Our production facilities and render farms do not run 24/7, only when needed. We save energy and emissions here.

The FLUXPRO servers run according to current ecological aspects and do their part to ensure that you can make your contribution to the climate issue.

With FLUXPRO you help to support the sustainability that we should all live. Invest in an absolutely sustainable product.
